Canada approves the modified program of work of JTC1 SC2 as documented in JTC1 N6181-1 and N6181-2, with the following editorial comments:

A. Please check the following entries and correct the erroneous one in the documents:

a. Document J1N61811.htm has the following entries in it:

ISO 6862: 1996 Information and documentation -- Armenian alphabet coded character set for bibliographical information interchange

ISO 10585:1996 Information and documentation - Armenian alphabet coded character set for bibliographic information interchange

b. Document J1N61812.htm has the following entries in WG3 projects:

3 02.06862* Information and documentation -- Mathematical coded character set for bibliographical information interchange - ISO 6862: 1996 - Published: 1996-10-01

3 02.10585* Information and documentation - Armenian alphabet coded character set for bibliographic information interchange - ISO 10585:1996 - Published: 1996-12-15

B. The following entry under WG3 in J161812.htm has a typo in it.

3 02.02 Information technology -- Character code Structure and extension techniques - ISO/IEC 2022: 1994 J. B. Paterson Published: 1994-12-01 (Forth Edition)

(FORTH edition) should be corrected to (FOURTH edition), in the last column.

The US National Body approves the modifications to the SC 2 Program of Work as detailed in JTC 1 N 6181 and offers the following comments:

ISO 6862:1996 is the "mathematical coded character set" developed by ISO/TC46/SC4, not an "Armenian alphabet coded character set." (The title of ISO 6862:1996 is correct in the table showing the JTC1/SC2 programme of work.)
